

CONTACT LENSES

*Hui A., Ngo W.Beyond contact lens discomfort

3

The discomfort that occurs when wearing contact lenses, both hard and soft, is the main reason why people stop wearing contact lenses. In the proposed article, the authors consider the scientific achievements made in the second decade of the 21st century in the field of research of this pathology.

Keywords: contact lenses, cytokines, discomfort, glycocalyx

*Jones L., Walsh K.COVID-19 and contact lenses. Practice re-entry considerations

11

The coronavirus pandemic has seriously disrupted the normal operation of optics salons and contact vision correction rooms. In this paper, leading industry experts provide practical guidance on how to restart our professional work.

Keywords: coronavirus, contact lenses, safety

DIAGNOSTICS, TREATMENT, PHARMACOLOGY, PHARMACY

*Schachter S.Vision considerations in dry eye, contact lens and cataract patients

22

The article provides an overview of three scientific studies that examined the effect of dry eye syndrome on the quality of vision and life of patients, in particular those who underwent cataract surgery and those who wear contact lenses. Based on the research, clinical recommendations were given.

Keywords: cataract, contact lenses, dry eye syndrome, visual acuity

NEW O.D.

*Tooth C.Sight support in schools

27

In this paper low vision specialist describes the impact of visual impairment on educational needs for young children and how this can be managed.

Keywords: children, dyskinetopsia, hemianopia, low vision

*Gow L.Preparation and adaptation: making your practice ASD-friendly

34

A small proportion of the population suffers from autism spectrum disorders. Such people need an optometric examination, but it presents serious difficulties for them. The article discusses the simple changes that need to be made in order to make the reception comfortable for this group of people.

Keywords: autism, autism spectrum disorder, visual acuity, visual functions

POINT OF VIEW

*Brewer B.Correction of early onset myopia – help or hindrance?

41

Ben Brewer looks at the published evidence that allows us to reassure those patients worried that correction of myopia makes the condition worse.

Keywords: contact lenses, early onset myopia, myopia, quality of life, spectacles, vision correction

IN PRACTICE

*Shevich I. A.Fitting glasses after glaucoma and cataracts surgery with application of intraocular lenses in both eyes

46